

Request for Proposals
Small International Travel Grants
DEADLINE: October 1, 2009

In 2009-2010, the Duke Global Health Institute (DGHI) will offer small international travel awards of up to $5000 each to Duke graduate students, post-doctoral fellows and junior faculty to pursue global health research opportunities in low or middle income countries (please see World Bank list). These grants are aimed at researchers looking to explore research collaborations by visiting an international site. Applications will be reviewed on a biannual schedule, and should include a brief (no more than 3 pages) description of proposed activities, budget, and applicant's CV. Applications should emphasize the relationship of the proposal to the 6 Signature Research Initiatives, and the prospects for longer term research funding support. Proposals will be reviewed by DGHI internal and external reviewers.

Proposal due dates:            March 1 and October 1
Funding award dates:        March 31 and October 30
