Monday, October 3rd, 2016
Field Auditorium, Environmental Hall, Duke West Campus

1:15-1:30 pm  Introduction by William Pan (Duke University)

1:30-3:30 pm  Panel 1 | Peruvian Public and Environmental Health Synergy
Moderator: Jaime Miranda (Universidad Peruana Cayetano Heredia)
Panelists: Maria Lazo-Porras (Universidad Peruana Cayetano Heredia) and Faculty and Students from the Nicholas School of the Environment, the Duke Global Health Institute & the Pratt School of Engineering

3:30-4:15 pm  Break and Student Poster Viewing
Student TED Talk videos shown on a loop, judging for student competition

4:15-4:30 pm  Global Health Video Screening: Dispatch from the Field, Peru: Studying Links Between Human Health and the Environment, 2016

4:30-6:00 pm  Panel 2 | From Durham to Madre de Dios—Research Dissemination and Communication for Change-making
Moderator: Valerie Paz Soldan (Tulane University)
Panelists: Ernesto Ortiz (Duke University), Ana Maria Morales (Peruvian Ministry of Health), Jason Beaubien (National Public Radio)

6:00-7:00 pm  Reception Hosted by the Nicholas School of the Environment
Student Poster & TED Talk Video prizes announced

7:00-8:30 pm  Film Screening  Hija de la Laguna/Daughter of the Lake and Global Health Video: Dispatch from the Field, Peru: Studying Links Between Human Health and the Environment, 2016
Followed by discussion led by Miguel Rojas Sotelo (Director, NC Latin American Film Festival)

The symposium is organized by CLACS in collaboration with the Duke Global Health Institute and the Nicholas School of the Environment at Duke University. It is made possible with the generous support of the Office of Global Affairs and the Hanscom Endowment.