Dr. Maman will present work that she has conducted in Dar es Salaam, Tanzania with colleagues at Muhimbili University of Health and Allied Sciences to identify and engage young men at risk for HIV and perpetration of violence in prevention interventions. She will describe men’s social networks in this setting, and characteristics of the networks that they have leveraged to implement an intervention that combines microfinance with health leadership training for men. She will describe the intervention trial and present findings from the baseline assessment of this trial.

Light lunch will be served.
